This was written in response to the huge rise in zoom choirs during the United Kingdom Lockdown of 2020. Sadly we are unable to hear each other and all my choir members have had to get used to the sound of their own voice bravely carrying the songs. A choir member remarked that we will sound even better when we get back together and I think she might be right. It also gives me great joy to see people singing with utter abandon despite everything.

I don't mind which section sings which part as I think there are various options.
